KEYMACRO is a program that enables users to enter text directly into their clipboard, which you can use to search for and find information on the web. This can be very useful if you need to perform a search on the internet, but you don't want to launch the actual browser. KEYMACRO supports search queries by opening results in your default browser, and users can add websites to a favorites list. You can also choose to open the websites in a new tab, in order to have the web pages in a separate window. The program also supports both the Windows and Mac OS. If you are using a Mac, you will be able to open and manage your favorite sites right from the program itself, and you can even edit the text that is inserted into your clipboard. The program comes with a built-in media player that allows you to listen to the information you need to perform your search in an instant. It supports the MP3 and OGG file formats, so you can download songs from websites that are compatible with these file types. KEYMACRO is able to manage files in such a way that you can upload them to your favorite sites, and even extract the information you need from the internet. This means that you can extract the title, album, artist, and duration of the song right from the program. What's new in this version: - Fixed rendering of some websites on non-Windows machines. - Fixed some website-related problems. - Some small improvements. No offense but your "software" looks like a bunch of text boxes. I don't care about how it does anything I just don't like how it looks. I wish you luck though because it really sounds like it could be useful. I'm sure it will find its way into more peoples computer though. Be more specific...I did a search on the internet to see if anyone was using it. I was curious to see if it was possible to use on my iPhone. It may be a basic question for you, but I had never used it on the iPhone. Be more specific...I did a search on the internet to see if anyone was using it. I was
