What's New in the Windows Media Playlist Generator?

Windows Media Player Windows Media Player is the default media player for Windows and is also available for Xbox. WMP works with a wide range of audio and video file formats. With WMP, you can add audio files to a media playlist from the list of songs in your music library. You can drag and drop audio, video, and other media files into your playlist or into the input boxes of the playlist to add them to the playlist. You can also attach a playlist to a new DVD, audio CD, or video CD to create a custom music or video disc. To create playlists, open WMP, right-click a blank area of the Media Library, select Add to Playlist, then choose the Playlist you want to add the files to. Music You can make playlists from your music library or use the Scrobbling feature to add songs to your playlist. There are several ways to make playlists: using the Playlist Wizard or starting with an empty playlist and adding songs. You can use the Playlist Wizard to create playlists based on a genre, artist, album, and other options. To do this, open the Playlists section of the Music Library, then click Create Playlist. The Playlist Wizard opens and you can choose the options you want to use to create your playlist. You can use your keyboard to advance to the next screen or use the tab key. Playlists are used as the main method for managing your music library. They are often created from your music collection, but you can also create your own playlists. You can share or create playlists with other WMP users. Playlists A playlist is simply a group of songs you want to play one after the other, instead of randomly. Playlists will help to organize your music and listen to your favorite songs one after the other. You can organize your playlists into folders. You can create playlists on your computer or use the Internet radio service, Last.fm, to listen to a customized radio station for your playlists. Scrobbling Scrobble is a system that allows you to add your songs from a website or using other methods to your Last.fm account. This allows Last.fm to automatically add your favorite songs and artist to the Last.fm database. Internet Radio Internet radio stations come in many forms. Last.fm has thousands of internet radio stations. Use the Internet Radio to listen to your favorite artist or genre
