However, it does take place. Many believe it is a human right to change your religion. From the beginning of human history, this has been a topic of debate and research. In the ancient world, the practice of changing religion is documented. In the seventeenth century, the scientific study of religion began. During the last sixty years, new disciplines have evolved and developed within the field of social science. The Human Rights Watch asked me to give this talk at their conference on Religious Freedom, Care and respect. I will share the knowledge that I have gained from my studies of the history of religious identity and conversion in the world and in the United States. Some people think that religion and culture are coterminous, but this is not the case. Culture is composed of language, literature, art, music, food, theater, architecture, religion, philosophy, science and many other domains. The practice of religious conversion is written in the genealogy of religious identity and conversion. Christians, Jews, and Muslims were the most persecuted communities for their religious identities and practice of conversion. Resisting conversion was punished with torture, death, and slavery. During the middle ages, only a few people could be converted. However, since the invention of printing and trans-global migration, conversion has become easy and inexpensive. For the first time in history, we are being confronted by a historically unprecedented process of mass conversion. The historical facts of religious conversion can shed light on the current problem and assist in solving it. Because of these facts and a knowledge of the psychological and political processes of religious identity, we can begin to understand the phenomenon of conversion. Religious conversion is illegal. However, it does take place. Many believe it is a human right to change your religion. From the beginning of human history, this has been a topic of debate and research. In the ancient world,

What's New in the Mortens HostAlive?

"Mortens HostAlive" is a software designed to check the online state of computers in a LAN or WAN. Besides a file-menu, the software has a main window, where the real action will occur. There are three main tabs: PING, EXPORT and HISTORY. The PING tab contains a list of all the computers on which the software is running. If the computer is online the status will be marked with a green box, if it is offline with a red box. A menu item is provided to change the view: – List view: the computers are listed on the left of the main window. It is also possible to select individual computers. – Calendar view: There is a calendar just below the list view. The dates are selected from an alarm time list. – Calendar list: The computers are listed on the left, the calendar underneath. It is possible to select a date, or a range of dates. – See all dates: Here the dates are listed below the list view. It is also possible to select individual dates. – Location list: Here the computers are listed on the left, the location underneath. It is possible to select a location, or a range of locations. – Search: After pressing ENTER a search field will appear below the list view. – IP address/domainname: A list with all the available computers can be selected here. In the EXPORT tab two groups of information are displayed: – Statistics: The duration for the pings, the number of connections per second, the traffic per second, the ping speed, the byte/packet ratio, the packet losses, the lookup times. – Host names: The list of hosts is exported in CSV-format. The headings are: Hostname, PING, ESTIMATE, DNS Time, CONNECTION, BYTE and PING. The hosts can be selected and the export button can be pressed to send the statistics to the list view. The HISTORY tab contains the history of all the pings for all the hosts. The data is displayed in a line chart or a list. The colors of the days, or range of days, can be changed in the view menu. The history can be selected and exported to a CSV file, that can be opened with Excel. Each group of hosts can be selected in this way.
